Courses

BED 5300. Bilingual Education Capstone.
This course is the culminating experience in the M. Ed. in Bilingual Education. It provides students the opportunity to synthesize and apply core content knowledge gained throughout their course of study. Through the completion of an integrated project conducted in a bilingual setting/context, students will be expected to demonstrate their academic and professional skill development as advanced bilingual teacher-leaders. Earning a grade of "pass" in the capstone course is a degree requirement for graduation.

BED 5305. Research in Bilingual Ed.
The goal of this course is to support students in developing critical research skills to examine, critique, evaluate and conduct bilingual and multilingual research from a range of research traditions or cultures of inquiry. The course provides essential understandings of research design and methods, including qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods approaches in bilingual education while making connections between theory, methodology, and analysis. The course is designed to encourage students' own related inquiry into a formal research proposal focused on bilingual education teaching.

BED 5315. Translanguaging res/ pedagog.
Translanguaging as the everyday ways of using language in bilingual communities, in and outside the classrooms, and translanguaging pedagogy will be examined. This course provides an exploration of dynamic bilingualism perspectives that interrogate rigid linguistic borders. It includes discussions on the monoglossic ideological approaches that circulate in schools, power, and privilege of particular speakers, and how they affect teaching practices. It includes research methodologies to collect and analyze empirical data of translanguaging as a practice and pedagogy in the borderland.

BED 5320. Language Policy in Educ.
This course focuses on educational language policy (ELP) - policy about the use and instruction of languages - and how social justice and educational equity can be advanced by examining and changing the ways language is used and taught. It explores ELP as not just official policy texts, but also everyday decisions about language use and language practices. Students examine the use of language policy as an instrument of control and as an instrument of empowerment, focusing in particular on educators' roles as arbiters of educational language policy and as actors with agency to effect change.

BED 5325. Assessing Bilingual Learners.
The course introduces students to the history, theory, methods, practice, and problems in the testing of emerging bilingual (EB) learners in formative and in large-scale assessments. This course covers the assessment of language proficiency and academic achievement in EB students. Issues of effectiveness, validity, and fairness in the testing of EB populations are addressed to emphasize a critical examination of the purpose, use methods, and appropriate selection of assessments to match the student population, context, and content.

BED 5340. Capstone Course for DL Edu..
Capstone Course for Dual Language Education The course has two major components. One is the field experience component, which involves designing and implementing lessons with K-12 students in a Dual Language setting. The second component is students' documentation of their learning in an electronic portfolio. It will include students' experiences through the coursework, observations, field experiences, and reflections aligned to the program objectives. The portfolio will be produced and disseminated electronically. Students will present the portfolio as part of the capstone course. For the field experience component, students will learn how dual language is implemented in real-world settings. Students are expected to observe and correlate practices of dual language education with the theories and methods studied in their coursework.
