TED 4330. Literacy Ed. & Youth Justice.
Using literacy as a framework, this course will examine structural factors that guide educational policies and practices and that influence public perceptions of youth. It will examine the roots and effects of zero tolerance policies in schools and the school-to-prison pipeline phenomenon to aid students in developing an understanding of the factors that contribute to the criminalization of youth. By exploring scholarship documenting the effects the standards and assessment movement has had on under-resourced schools serving historically-marginalized youth, students will understand the ways in which schools reproduce rather than interrupt social inequities. Finally, this course will look to nation-wide models of youth-led and youth-centered literacy to guide students in understanding the role critical literacy initiatives play in civic engagement, and social change.

Corequisite(s):

TED 4360. Sr Proj: Pedagogy & Community.
This course is designed to fulfill the senior capstone requirement in Pedagogy & Community Studies. The course will cover different approaches to community-based educational research, with an emphasis on participatory action research and project evaluation. Building upon acquired research skills and evolving interest, students will conduct an independent research project in partnership with a community-based educational organization. Course meetings will provide a thematic focus as well as a forum for both support and constructive feedback from peers, in preparation for students' public presentations of their research projects at the close of the semester.
